

PART G7 INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

7.1 INTER-PACIFIC PONY CLUB EXCHANGE

The Inter-Pacific Pony Club Exchange is a competition for teams from countries in the Pacific area (for example, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Japan etc.) The Exchange is held in odd-numbered years with the venue moving from country to country. Each team consists of four associate riders. Australia chooses its representatives on a roster system. Each State can nominate a representative if it is their turn in the roster. Nominations, lodged through Zone Committees, are accepted at the Executive Council Meeting in the year prior to the exchange.

To qualify for Inter-Pacific, a rider must:

1. be between 17 years and 25 years of age.
2. hold their "B" certificate prior to their nomination.
3. have competed in grade 2 or higher eventing.
4. have competed in "A" grade or higher showjumping.
5. display above-average involvement in Pony Club work.
6. have a good general knowledge (particularly of their own country and the host country).
7. have an ability to mix easily with their peers and adults.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE INTER-PACIFIC EXCHANGE

In 1960, Victoria invited Members of a Canadian Pony Club to visit Australia. They also invited Pony Club Members from the other Australian States to come to Victoria to meet the visitors. This rally proved to be such a success that Australia decided to repeat the exercise again in 1961, inviting Canada, U.S.A. and New Zealand to compete.

This meeting was held in Victoria on the Mornington Peninsula. At this rally the first Inter-Pacific Council was formed. The Exchange would take place every two years with each country hosting the rally in turn. The next Pacific country invited to join the exchange was Japan.

In 1965 England, although not a Pacific country, was invited to send a team to take part, as it is the founding country of Pony Clubs. Since then, the Far East has joined the Exchange. The Far East team is made up of Pony Club Members from Hong Kong, Singapore, Philippines and Thailand.

The host country supplies all horses for the competitions and these are drawn for by all countries competing. The events are a One Day Event in which the teams are scrambled, and Show Jumping, where the countries compete against each other for the International Show Jumping Cup.

Costs associated with participating in the Interpacific Exchange and International Mounted Games Competition are as follows:

Any rider selected to represent PCASA at any International and/or Interpacific competition, is to notify PCASA office when travel costs are received from PCA.

PCA will send all paper work directly to the rider, and PCASA will pay directly to the PCA the full amount of any international airfare cost as soon as notification is received from the rider to our office.

All internal airfare, camp costs (if any) uniform, and overseas insurance fees are to be the responsibility of the rider and if possible the rider's club and zone.

Should the PCASA receive from the PCA a subsidy from any sports grants the PCASA may refund part of the uniform costs?

The rider will be obliged to send to the PCASA office a detailed account of all costs involved as soon as possible on return.
